DESCRIPTION

Based out of Belgium, Poldoore started producing at an early age and eventually his potential was realized by Cold Busted's offer to release his debut L.A.X. EP . From there the pairing has only grown stronger. Poldoore's sound is about good vibes, creating warm atmospheres that blend funk, soul, lounge, and reggae with punchy drum breaks.

Among the album's many highlights is "Morning Glory," featuring a rocksteady beat with bright arpeggiated synths at select moments, with the bulk of the track carried by wailing guitars and chopped up blues vocals. "Ahhh Yeah" enters like a walk in the park with bright keys, lovely strings, and funky rhythms, the results of rearranging an original sample into suitable bits and pieces with a little help from Maverick. "Heard It All Before" has Bodhilynn's soulful vocal hook accompanied by The 49ers' rhymes and a key-based beat with soaring highs. "Natural High" elicits psychedelic vibes with plenty of effects, a sporadic, low electric shock, and interwoven, layered guitar play. "Unconditional" uses a Motown-like backing track beefed up by a strong kick and slow, sizzling hats, cymbals, and snares. Midway through "Unconditional" Poldoore is joined by Will Magid's saucy, bayou-evoking horn solo. "Call It A Day" is a dreamy funk affair full of shimmering, echoing melodies, teetering guitars, forward-staggering key stabs, and a stand out bass line.

The Day Off is full of sonic sunshine, exactly the kind of sonic weather fit for enjoying what little time there is for leisure and much appreciated in today's musical climate.
